The Earthquake Drill is Just Around The Corner

The Great California ShakeOut will begin at 10:15 a.m. on Thursday, October 15.

At that time the VIUE Block Captains will go up and down our streets, looking for (and counting) houses with their OK/NEED HELP signs displayed in the front window. Putting out the sign is your way of indicating that you are aware of the event and want to participate.

The ShakeOut event is also a good time to check on your own preparedness. Do you know what to do when a severe earthquake happens? Do you have supplies on hand if normal life is disrupted, and you can't get out to buy food? What would you do if the power went out, and stayed out for days? What would you do if the water went out?

This will be a good time to make sure you know what to do. And putting out your sign is your way to show it.

By the way, if you don't have a sign you can pick one up in the main room at the center, on the shelf under the office window.

After patrolling the streets, all Block Captains will meet in the craft room at the center to discuss how everything went.

We're still short of Block Captains, so you if you're interested please come to the meeting; we welcome all volunteers.

Was that an earthquake?
You just felt some mild shaking. You wonder: Was that a little earthquake nearby, or a big earthquake far away?

There's an easy way to tell. If it lasts for only about a second, it's a little quake nearby. If it goes on and on it's probably a big quake far away.

And if it goes on and on and causes things to come tumbling down, you know it's a big one.

VIEU 新闻

地震演习即将开始

加州大地震演习（Great California ShakeOut）将于 10 月 15 日星期四上午 10:15 开始。

届时，VIEU 的街区负责人（Block Captains）会在我们的街道上来回巡查，寻找并统计那些在前窗上展示 "OK（没问题）/ NEED HELP（需要帮助）" 标志的房屋。把标志放出来，就是表示您知道这次活动，并愿意参加。

ShakeOut 演习也是检查自己防灾准备情况的好机会。您知道发生严重地震时该怎么做吗？如果正常生活受到影响，无法外出购买食物，您家里是否备有足够的物资？如果停电，而且连续几天都没有恢复，您会怎么办？如果停水了，您又会怎么办？

这是一个很好的机会，确保自己知道在这些情况下应该怎么做。而把您的标志放出来，就是您参与这次演习的一种方式。

顺便说一下，如果您没有标志，可以到中心的主活动室领取一个。标志放在办公室窗户下面的架子上。

街区负责人巡查完街道后，将在中心的手工艺室集合，讨论此次演习的情况以及进行得如何。

我们目前仍然缺少街区负责人。如果您对此感兴趣，请来参加会议；我们欢迎所有志愿者。

刚才那是地震吗？

您刚刚感觉到了一阵轻微的晃动。您可能会想：这是附近发生了一次小地震，还是远处发生了一次大地震？

有一个简单的方法可以判断。

如果晃动只持续了大约一秒钟，那么通常是附近发生的小地震。

如果晃动持续很久、一直不停，那么很可能是远处发生了一次大地震。

而如果晃动持续很久，并且导致东西纷纷掉落、倒下来，那么您就知道这是一次大地震。

A Feel-Good WWII Story

Pete Cleaveland

Back in the late ‘60s I worked with a friend named Stan, who had been through some harrowing and also very adventurous times during WWII. One day he told me a story that has stuck with me all these years.

It was near the end of the war in Europe, and Stan found himself in charge of a small unit of war-weary allied troops. There were a few hundred men, a couple of light tanks, and a few machine guns. They were camped on a vast, flat area in France.

Across a small stream was a similarly war-weary German unit, with many more men, artillery, the whole shebang.

Everyone knew that the war was effectively over, and nobody wanted to stir up trouble. They were just waiting for it all to be over.

After a little while, Stan told me, he saw someone on the German side step out in front with a white flag of parley. It was the German commander. Stan got out a flag and walked across the field to meet him. They said hello and introduced themselves. After a few minutes of small talk the German commander said, “You know, we're all very tired of fighting. If you guys don’t take any hostile action we won’t either.”

“Hostile action?” said Stan. “I have just a few men and a few tanks. You have many more men, artillery, and everything else. I’d be a fool to attack.”

“I’m glad we understand each other,” said the German.

Both of them then went back to their lines.

Weeks went by, and things had settled down to a routine. Stan and the German commander would talk every now and then, and that was about it.

But Stan had a problem. He was under British command, he told me, and every Sunday an officious British Colonel would come out in a command car and inspect the camp. Everything had to be ship-shape, clean, and extra neat. “Yes, Sir.” Not the sort of way tired and battle-hardened troops wanted to be treated.

One day Stan had had enough. He signaled to the German commander that he wanted to talk.

"How are things going?" asked the German.

"Not bad," said Stan, "but I do have one problem."

"What's that?"

"It's this British Colonel. Every Sunday he comes across this big flat area in his command car to inspect us. He makes us sweep up, put everything in exact order. He even makes us polish our tanks. He's driving us crazy. Do you have any suggestions?"

The German commander laughed for about five minutes. When he recovered, he replied.

"You know, we've been camped out here for the longest time doing essentially nothing. Standing orders say that if we haven't engaged in combat for a certain length of time we're supposed to conduct training. And we haven't had any artillery practice in quite a while."

"I'm glad you understand," said Stan. "He comes across the plain from that direction at 8:00 every Sunday. If you don't see him I'll wave my handkerchief to alert you."

The next Sunday here came the colonel in his command car. Stan waved his handkerchief and the German commander waved back. Suddenly an artillery shell burst a few hundred yards in front of the colonel's command car. He kept going. Then another shell burst a few hundred yards behind it. The colonel kept going. Then shells burst to his left, then to his right. He kept going.

Another shell burst in front of him, much closer this time, then behind, then to the left and right.

The colonel kept going and the shellfire kept getting closer and closer. Finally, with the windows of his command car blown out, the colonel got the message. He turned around and departed, and Stan never saw him again.

AGE-FRIENDLY SAN LEANDRO: WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU

San Leandro wants to be a city you can grow old in without giving up your independence, and this year the Age-Friendly San Leandro Initiative is putting real programs behind that promise. The plan runs through June 2027 and organizes the work around five goals: keeping you safe, keeping you healthy, keeping you moving, keeping you connected, and keeping the funding in place so none of it disappears next budget cycle.

Need a ride? The RideCar volunteer driver program and the FLEX Rides shuttle will take you to appointments, the grocery store, and day trips to parks and museums, all free or low-cost. Can't get to the store at all? A new Senior Food Delivery Pilot launched this year for residents who have trouble reaching a grocery store, alongside long-running programs like the Mercy Brown Bag food distribution and SOS Meals on Wheels. The city also runs Alzheimer's disease training and emergency preparedness workshops through the Senior Commission, and Kaiser held an Aging Well Resource Showcase in March.

Pedro Naranjo, the city's Human Services Manager, oversees the initiative. None of it helps if you don't know it exists, so we pulled together the direct links below. Call or click, and pass this page along to a neighbor who could use it.

AT A GLANCE: THE FIVE GOALS

SAFE — Emergency preparedness workshops and Alzheimer's training through the Senior Commission.

HEALTHY — Checkups and resources highlighted at Kaiser's Aging Well Resource Showcase.

MOVING — RideCar volunteer drivers and the FLEX Rides shuttle, free or low-cost.

CONNECTED — Social trips to parks, museums, and community events.

FUNDED — Steady city budget support so these programs continue next cycle.

DATA CENTERS ARE COMING. WHO PAYS FOR THEM?

Everyone wants to build a data center in the Bay Area right now, and the fight over who foots the bill has reached your doorstep, whether a facility ever gets built nearby or not. A Santa Ana company called Global Stack wants to lease land at eight Bay Area fairgrounds, including the Cow Palace, the San Mateo County Event Center, the Solano County Fairgrounds, and the Santa Clara County Fairgrounds, to build AI computing facilities. Fairgrounds boards are still weighing the offer, and Calistoga's board already turned down a similar plan this year after residents raised concerns about noise and pollution.

Closer to Mission Bay, a developer wants to convert a downtown Oakland office building into a data center for AI companies. Some Oakland residents oppose the plan, questioning its water and power use and saying the public had little notice before it was announced.

Here's the part that reaches your mailbox either way. Data centers draw enormous amounts of power, and utilities have to expand the grid to serve them. The Utility Reform Network estimates that rising data center demand in PG&E's territory could add up to 1.8 billion dollars in transmission upgrade costs, costs utilities can normally spread across every ratepayer unless the state steps in first.

Two bills in Sacramento, AB 2383 and SB 886, would make large data centers pay their own share of new grid costs instead of spreading them across your bill, starting January 1, 2027. Governor Newsom has until September 30 to sign or veto both. PG&E opposes strict mandates, arguing data center demand could actually lower residential rates by spreading fixed grid costs across more customers. Consumer advocates and most Democratic lawmakers back the bills; most Republican lawmakers oppose them, warning the rules could push AI investment out of California.

WHAT'S ON YOUR NOVEMBER 3 BALLOT

San Leandro holds its general election on November 3, 2026. Voters will decide a business license tax measure that would replace the city's 30 tax categories with 9 and shift from flat fees to a tax based on gross receipts, with a 25,000-dollar annual exemption for small businesses and a 25 percent discount for businesses earning more than 50 million dollars a year. If voters approve it, new rates take effect April 1, 2027.

This is also San Leandro's first council election held under Measure F, the charter amendment voters approved in June 2026 by more than 87 percent, moving city council elections from citywide voting to district-based voting. Find your district, your candidates, and your registration deadline before you head to the polls.
