When is Chinese New Year?

The Chinese New Year marks the first day in the lunar calendar, which begins the day after the first new moon appears between January 21 and February 20. This year the New Year falls on Sunday, January 22. The celebrations usually start on the evening preceding the first day of the new year (January 21), and run until February 9, when lantern festivals traditionally take place.

CLAPPING FOR FIRST RESPONDERS

As most of you know, when Covid started, people in New York would go out in the streets and on their balconies to clap at 7:00 p.m. each evening for all health care and essential workers for one full minute. The MB office sent a notice to residents (as a suggestion) that maybe we might want to get a group together to do the same. As a result, this group started doing that on April 2, 2020 until fall. Then had to change days and time, do to weather. They started with just a few people, which grew to 8-9. After clapping, they would stand around and chat awhile, so they names themselves: "Clap and Chat". The core group still continue to meet each Tuesday and Thursday @4:00 p.m., in front of their homes on Santa Monica (weather permitting). Stop by and join them any time you like.

Actionable and Healthy Resolutions for Seniors in 2023

by Caring Places Management

As you map out your 2023 New Year's resolutions, focus on attainable goals that boost your health and overall quality of life. While resolutions will vary from individual to individual, below are seven positive ways to refocus your energy in 2023.

1. Keep a Positive Mindset

Research shows that maintaining a positive mindset comes with a host of health benefits. According to the findings, positivity has been linked to a lower risk of memory loss, quicker recovery from illness, injury or disability, a lower risk of chronic disease, decreased feelings of loneliness and isolation, and an increased likelihood for seeking preventative care.

2. Commit to 10 Minutes of Exercise Daily

Staying active is not just the key to healthy aging, but also, it may be the key to a longer life. Though the research behind the positive effects of exercise on aging is extensive, the findings from a 30-year study effectively sum them up. Per the findings, incorporating an exercise regime of walking, jogging, or cycling in seniors can drastically improve physiological characteristics such as blood pressure, resting heart rate, maximum pumping capacity, and muscle mass. For some people, the improvements are so significant that baseline levels match those from their early 20s.

3. Make Better Dietary Choices

As you age, you will need to consume fewer calories but more nutrients. Your health care provider can help you make better food choices, but, ultimately, you should strive to eat at least five servings of fruits and vegetables per day. Choose whole grains over refined ones and lean meats over fatty options. Use healthier fats, such as olive or avocado oil, and cook with natural spices to reduce salt and fat intake.

4. Play With Your Grandkids

Though the reasons behind the phenomenon are multi-faceted, research shows that elderly individuals who spend more quality time with their grandchildren live longer and have better physical and mental health outcomes than those who do not.

5. Stimulate Your Mind

Regularly challenging your brain is one of the best ways to stay mentally sharp as you age. It's also one of the best ways to reduce your risk of memory loss or developing dementia. Simple things such as reading daily, doing crosswords, or joining a book club are great and fun ways to ensure your body's most important muscle receives an adequate workout.

6. Reach Out to Old Friends, and Make New Ones

Studies show that socially active older adults have better cognition, lower risks of disability and depression, and overall better health. Social media makes it easy to find and reach out to old friends, while elder living communities provide ample opportunity to make new ones.

You Can Be A Seismologist

by Peter Cleveland

Most of us can't go back to school for a degree in seismology, but there is a way to help. You may have heard of the MyShake app, which enables your smart phone to receive automatic warnings when an earthquake happens, but you may not know that the app works in both directions: not only does it receive warnings and maps of earthquake activity, but it sends back information to aid researchers.

We have explained the warning part before: The MyShake system uses the difference in travel time between fast-moving but harmless P waves and slower but more damaging S waves to provide up to several seconds of warning to allow people to drop, cover and hold on. The amount of warning you get depends on your distance from the epicenter of the quake; the farther away, the greater the warning time.

But what you may not have known is that the MyShake app on your phone constantly monitors the actual shaking your phone experiences and sends the information to UC Berkeley scientists to aid in earthquake research. It's nice to be able to assist in seismic research without having to do anything.

An apology

At the meeting of block captains following the October 20th ShakeOut drill it became apparent that a number of block captains were short of equipment. At the meeting I promised to take care of this, but have been laid up with back problems, and am currently recovering from spinal surgery and unable to immediately do what's needed.

As soon as I'm back on my feet I'll get the needed materials together; in the mean time, I ask for your patience.

園區內志願者應急組織(VIEU)信息

你可以成為一名地震學家

我們中的大多數人無法回到學校攻讀地震學學位，但有一種方法可以幫助研究工作。您可能聽說過 MyShake 應用程序，它可以讓您的智能手機在地震發生時自動接收警報，但您可能不知道該應用程序是雙向作業。它不僅可以接收警報和地震活動繪圖，還可以發回信息以幫助研究人員。

我們之前已經解釋過警報部分：MyShake 系統利用快速移動但無害的 P 波與較慢但更具破壞性的 S 波之間的傳播時間差異來提供長達幾秒的警報，讓人們有數秒時間趴低、找掩護和抱緊穩固支撐。您所收到的警報數量取決於您與震央的距離； 距離越遠就有更長的預警時間。

但您可能不知道的是您手機上的 MyShake 應用程序會持續監控您手機的實際震動情況，並將信息自動發送給加州大學伯克利分校的科學家，以幫助進行地震研究。在不做任何額外事情的情況下能夠協助地震研究真是太棒了。

在 10 月 20 日的「加州大震動演習」之後的街道隊長會議上，發覺許多街道隊長很明顯缺少所需設備。 在會議上我承諾會處理這件事，但因背部問題而一直臥床不起，目前正在從脊柱手術中恢復，無法立即處理要做的事情。當我康復後，就會把需要的材料准備好放在一起； 在此期间，我懇請您的見諒及耐心等待。

Mission Bay Residents Association (MBRA)

RESULTS of the NOVEMBER 16 HEARING: Appeal of City of San Leandro's Approval of BSM's Application for "Temporary" Rent Increase

Our neighbor, Barbara Sullivan, found an excellent attorney to represent Mission Bay residents, Palmer Bucholz of Bay Area Legal Aid. https://baylegal.org/ Attorney Bucholz made the following, summarized points regarding BSM's application:

- BSM has not met basic standards and compliance with the City's Noise Ordinance (https://www.nonoise.org/regulation/ordinance/San%20Leandro,%20California.pdf) and the Mobilehome Rent Stabilization Ordinance, including failure to comply with the Ordinance definition of "capital replacement"
- Consistent referral in both the application and the construction bids as a "sound wall" is an inaccurate portrayal of the wall's purpose, and therefore misleading. "Sound Wall" is not interchangeable with definition of "a wall".
- Ordinance requires BSM to prove that the "sound wall" was built in compliance with zoning requirements when built. Simply "not knowing" whether the wall was in compliance is "insufficient".
- No evidence that the "regular inspections" testified to by Jasinsky in this hearing actually led to any effective maintenance since 1971. Regular maintenance following inspection could have reduced the present cost.
- The two contractor bids are wildly different. Why? There was no transparency to residents why these contractors were selected, and why BSM chose the bid they did (the lower bid).

THE PRESIDING HEARING OFFICER, DEREK CHANDLER, WILL PROVIDE A DECISION AND WRITTEN RESPONSE WITHIN 30 DAYS OF THE HEARING.

Regardless of the outcome, thank you to all of you who attended the hearing at the community center (50-60 of us!) and others who may have joined the call from home. Regardless of the outcome - we all know that the big problem is the Mobilehome Rent Stabilization Ordinance itself. It was poorly written and provides little significant benefit to mobilehome residents. It does, however, provide significant benefit to the Park Owners.

A BIG THANK YOU TO BARBARA SULLIVAN, who decided to appeal the City's decision when your MBRA Board decided against appealing based upon the advice we received from GSMOL's General Counsel. With her excellent research, it looks like we may now have a legal organization willing to work with us in the future! On behalf of all of your neighbors, Barbara, thank you.

Also thanks to Mark Page, another neighbor and MBRA Board Member, whose considerable experience, a current, licensed general contractor who has built "hundreds" of sound and other types of walls brought expertise to the hearing.

The MBRA Board meets at 10:am on the first Saturday of every month in the clubhouse. Community Members are welcome and encouraged to attend these monthly meetings. For more information or communication with Board Members, please email us at mbhoasl@gmail.com or look online at NextDoor.com/Mission Bay where you can find the latest MBRA news.

What is feng shui

Chinese New Year, also known as Lunar New Year and Spring Festival, is quickly approaching on January 22.

The holiday, which lasts for 15 days, marks the beginning of spring on the lunar calendar and is one of the most important celebrations in Asian culture, especially Chinese culture, says Anjie Cho, feng shui and meditation teacher in New York City, feng shui expert at The Spruce, and co-host of the Holistic Spaces podcast. "It's very similar to how we look at our regular New Year on January 1," she says.

To get ready for Chinese New Year, many people sweep, clean, and decorate their homes before the holiday begins. The goal is to create the optimal feng shui to enjoy good luck, health, and prosperity all year long.

Below, Cho explains how you can use feng shui to usher in the Lunar New Year.

01 Brighten Up Your Entry

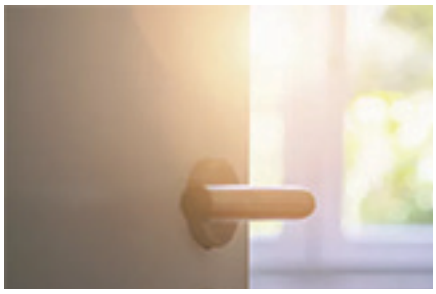

In feng shui, your entry represents how energy enters your home and your life. The front door is the "mouth of qi." The entrance is the first place to start when you want to create good feng shui in your home.

Start with decluttering and removing any debris. A lot of objects tend to accumulate at the front door. It doesn't need to be empty but relatively uncluttered. Sweep and clean up the area.

Can you make this space more inviting and spacious by removing or adding anything? Clearing out a space creates a place for the energy that enters your home to collect and gather. Blocking energy is one of the essential things you should not do in feng shui.

Finally, make sure this space is well-lit and bright. Add lighting or change the bulbs.

02 Give Doors Attention

In feng shui, doors represent your voice and communication. Doors are also portals through which opportunities can come into your life. Your doors deserve a bit of your attention.

There are two things to look out for. First, be sure that all your doors can open to at least 90 degrees. When there is a bunch of clutter behind a door, it can't open all the way. This blockage means you can only receive a portion of life's opportunities. There are parts that you're closing yourself off to.

Second, check that all your doors are working correctly. Ensure that the hardware functions effortlessly and that the hinges are not squeaking. Look to see that the door can close well and with ease. All these details affect how the energy finds its way to you. You want the flow to be as smooth as possible.

03 Commanding Position

ICommanding position governs how you position yourself in life. Apply this position to the location of your bed, desk, and stove.

The bed represents you. The desk represents your career. And the stove represents your wealth. When you are in these spaces, be sure that you can see the door without being directly in line with it. For example, when you are lying in bed, sitting at your desk, or cooking at the stove, you want to see the door. You might end up diagonal or "kitty-corner" from the door.

You are in command of your life when you are in a commanding position. You are in a place to receive positive energy and the best opportunities.

"The orange is a really popular fruit in Asia, and it's very important in Chinese culture," says Cho. Because of their bright gold color, oranges are a symbol of good fortune.

Place a bowl of oranges on your table to reap the benefits. "Having nine fresh oranges brings in this feeling of wealth, abundance, and freshness," says Cho. "You're bringing great joy and happiness into your space."

04 Remove Obstacles in

Take a good look at your daily path through your home; this is your feng shui space layout. Look at the physical path you walk as you move through your home, from when you wake up and arise from bed, then to the bathroom, and so on as you head out the door. Do the same when you get home, make dinner, and end up in bed.

You become desensitized to all the blocks and physical obstacles you have in your daily path. Maybe it's an obstacle when you have to squeeze through a cluttered hallway. When you hopelessly peer into a closet jammed with clothes that don't fit you anymore—all of this affects you. Over time these obstacles can accumulate and create problems for you; this can be considered bad feng shui for a house.

The first step is to notice the obstacles, adjust with kindness, and be gentle—one thing at a time.

05 Be Spacious

Clutter is often in the same sentence as feng shui, but feng shui is less about de-cluttering and more about creating space.

How do you make your life more spacious? Start with your home. Find a physical spot: a drawer, room, corner of the refrigerator, desk—the size doesn't matter—and let go of what's no longer necessary. When you let something go, you create an open space to invite a new, fresh opportunity.

And don't beat yourself up if the space gets filled up. It's how the universe works. Life is not static or solid; there is impermanence. Joyfully dance with the waxing and waning of humanity. Open spaces get filled up, then emptied, then filled again. Always be willing to make a fresh start. Find a new (or the same) corner to release and create some space over and over again.

06 Offer Gratitude

Offer thanks to your home. Feng shui is a shamanic tradition that derives from the belief that everything is alive, including your space. The same life energy (qi) that animates you also flows through your home.

Your home is your shelter. Your home gives you a place to rest, nourish, celebrate, and so much more. Offering gratitude to your home is simple. Speak to your home with a humble heart and say, "Thank you."

Home Sweet Mobile Home

Your January Home Checklist

Make a fresh start in the new year with a healthy pantry makeover, organized files and a decluttered home. Of course, once the energy of those new year's resolutions begins to fizzle, you may be in need of a midwinter boost — when that time comes, try cozy accents and a few light-enhancing tips to keep the winter blues at bay.

Refresh your kitchen and pantry for the new year. Have you made a new year's resolution to eat healthier foods or eat out less and prepare more meals at home? Kick things off by thoroughly cleaning your kitchen and pantry. Put your blender or juicer in a prominent spot on the counter to make it easier to whip up healthy juices and smoothies, and place fresh produce front and center.

Boost light. Getting enough light can make a huge difference in how we feel in winter. Do what you can to boost light by pulling open window coverings during the day, adding lamps and candles, and lighting a fire in the fireplace or wood stove if you have one. Or consider decorating with white for a light, bright look — in the Scandinavian countries, white interiors are common, thanks to their ability to amplify light and cheer up homes during those long, cold northern winters.

Clear home and wardrobe clutter. Post holidays is a good time for decluttering, since there's a good chance you accumulated some new things over the previous few weeks. Grab a cardboard box and fill it with clothes, books and other items you no longer love or use. When it's full, take it to a charitable donation center.

Take down and store holiday decorations. Pack fragile ornaments and wind tree lights around a piece of cardboard to avoid tangling. If there were any ornaments or decorations you didn't end up using this year, consider giving them away, and save the space for things you really love.

January Gardening Tips

Although it is cold outside, the early months of the year are important for getting your garden off to a good start. .

Plan your summer garden. For vegetable variety recommendations for areas near costal California, consider the recommendations from our test garden. Another useful resource for gardeners whose plots are influenced by the San Francisco Bay's maritime weather is Plant Recommendations West of the East Bay Hills .

Buy seeds.

Plant bare root fruit and shade trees, roses, shrubs and vines. For information of fruit tree varieties, check out UC Davis' Home Orchard site.

Plant bare-root artichokes, asparagus, blackberries, grapes, raspberries, rhubarb, and strawberries.

Start seeds (indoors) of cool-season leafy vegetables (lettuce, Swiss chard, spinach, etc), Brassica family crops (broccoli, spring cabbage, cauliflower, etc.), and leeks.

Prune dormant deciduous plants such as flowering vines, fruit and shade trees, grapes, roses and hydrangeas.

Prune salvias, penstemons, butterfly bush, California fuchsia and other summer-blooming perennial shrubs.
