Results of the 2023 ShakeOut

The 2023 Great California ShakeOut on October 19 met with limited success here in Mission Bay. An estimated ten percent of homes displayed their OK/NEED HELP signs, and several of our block captains were unable to participate due to health issues. This leads to two thoughts:

1. We need more block captains. There should be at least eight, and preferably more. This year we had three fully active, plus two out for health reasons. A block captain's duties are simple: Keep a VIEU backpack with emergency response equipment (first aid kit, two-way radio, flashlight, glow sticks, Mylar blanket, whistle and instructions), maintain a list of residents in the patrol area, and participate in the annual ShakeOut drill.

Anyone interested please contact Pete Cleaveland, #481, 510-351-1742, pcleaveland@earthlink.net.

2. We need to publicize the need for emergency preparedness for everyone, with notices and, if possible, park-wide events like visiting experts and more. We may also schedule a mid-year drill, rather than just the one each October. We'll look into these, but suggestions are always welcome.

The notices that weren't

The ShakeAlert system, which is supposed to send out warnings to take cover before damage occurs did not cover itself with glory this year. On October 18 there was a quake in Sacramento County that was initially estimated at magnitude 4.7, which was enough to activate the ShakeAlert system and send warning notices to thousands of cell phone in a wide area. Shortly thereafter it was downgraded to 4.1 and then back to 4,2, which isn't enough to trigger an alert. Oops.

The system was then supposed to send out a test alert at 10:19 on ShakeOut day, but by mistake sent it out at 3:19 a.m. Oops.

2023年度“加州大震動”演習結果

在10月19日，2023年度“加州大震動”演習在 Mission Bay 取得了有限的成功。估計只有百分之十的家庭展示了“OK/NEED HELP” 標誌，我們的幾位街道隊長由於健康問題而無法參加。這次演習引發兩個想法：

1.我們需要更多的隊長。 應該至少有八名，當然最好更多。 今年，我們有三名現役隊長，另外兩名因健康原因缺席。 巡邏隊長的職責很簡單：攜帶一個裝有緊急應變設備的 VIEU 背包（有急救箱、雙向無線電、手電筒、螢光棒、聚酯薄膜毯、口哨和說明），维繫巡邏區域居民名單，並參與一年一度“加州大震動”演習。任何有興趣的人請聯絡 Pete Cleaveland，#481，510-351-1742，pcleaveland@earthlink.net。

2. 我們需要向所有人發通告來宣揚做好緊急準備的必要性。如果可能的話邀請專家出席園區活動。我們也可能安排一次年中演習，而不僅僅是每年十月的演習。我們會探究這些主意，歡迎您隨時提出建議。

ShakeAlert 系統本應在嚴重損壞發生之前發出警告以便大家能尋求掩護，但今年卻沒有即時啟動。在 10月18 日，沙加緬度（Sacramento）縣發生了一場初步估計為 4.7 級地震，這足以啟動 ShakeAlert 系統向震央大範圍內的手機發送警告通知。但發生後不久，它被降為 4.1级，然後又轉為 4.2級，這就不足以觸發警報。哎呀。

Christmas traditions: 16 festive rituals – and why we celebrate them -

By Jennifer Ebert, Better Homes & Gardens

Crackers, mince pies, a kiss under the mistletoe, Father Christmas, how and where did they all begin?

It's the heart-warming Christmas traditions that we cherish and repeat year after year that makes the festive period so special, but did you know that putting up your Christmas tree, the giving and receiving of Christmas cards, your most traditional Christmas decor ideas – along with our other favorite customs stems back many years...

Below, are Christmas traditions and the meaning behind them.

1. Red, Gold And Green

Christmas traditions don't get more traditional than this color scheme. But why do we err towards red, gold and green if we want to create a 'traditional' feel? Unsurprisingly, this Christmas ritual has its roots in religion: red suggest the blood of Christ; gold is one of the gifts from the Three Kings; while green is a symbol of everlasting life.

2. Carol Singing

Carols were once folk songs sung at celebrations throughout the year – and not just at Christmas. Later, in medieval times, they were adopted and adapted by church goers, and many of these carols still make up our most beloved Christmas traditions – The Holly and The Ivy is a medieval carol, for instance.

3. The Christmas Tree

The fir tree has traditionally been used to celebrate winter festivals

(pagan and Christian) for thousands of years.

Pagans used branches of it to decorate their homes during the winter solstice, as it made them think of the spring to come.

The Romans used fir trees to decorate their temples at the festival of Saturnalia, which in time became Christmas.

Christmas tree ideas became popular in the UK when Queen Victoria's husband Prince Albert brought one over from Germany in 1841 and placed it in Windsor Castle. They posed in front of it with their children for a newspaper article and it soon became fashionable all over the country.

4. The Christmas Wreath
Even before the birth of Christ, and Christmas as we know it Christmas wreath ideas have been used as a symbol of honor and victory.

In the Middle Ages it was adopted by those of the Christian faith as a representation of the start of Christmas.

5. Evergreen Foliage
The tradition of using evergreen foliage around the time of the winter solstice dates back to pagan and Roman festivals. It symbolizes the victory of life over darkness.

Bringing greenery into the home was also thought to protect it from evil spirits that tried to gain entry during the winter months – hence the Christmas foliage ideas we include in our decorating today.

6. Christmas Cards
Victorian Entrepreneur Sir Henry Cole commissioned the first Christmas card in the UK in 1843, as he was too busy to write individual greetings to friends.

A thousand cards were printed and Cole sold those left over for 6d (about 2.5p). When the Royal family started sending Christmas cards, their popularity grew enormously.

7. Christmas Stockings

St. Nicholas, the patron saint of children, was actually a 4th-Century Christian bishop in what is now a modern-day Turkey.

Legend has it that he wanted to help a poor family who had three daughters, all in need of a dowry before they could marry.

To give charity without injuring their pride, he threw gold coins down their chimney on Christmas Eve – and the coins fell in to a stocking that was hanging in the fireplace to dry.

Today, many people put an orange in Christmas stockings to represent the gold coin.

8. Mistletoe
This hardy plant was revered by the Druids for its ability to survive and remain green throughout the winter without roots. They harvested it during the winter solstice and used it for medical purposes.

The Scandinavians associated the mistletoe with their goddess of love, and the Romans saw it as a symbol of peace – both possibly leading to our belief that a kiss underneath will lead to a year of good luck and for young maidens the possibility of marriage.

Mistletoe berries are poisonous if eaten and should be kept away from children.

9. Advent Calendars
Advent is the start of the Christmas season and begins four Sundays before Christmas. However, advent calendars as we know them today begin on December 1 and count down 24 days to Christmas Eve.
The countdown is said to originate in Germany in the early 19th-Century, with the Lutherans marking down the days until Christmas with chalk on their front doors.

The first hand-made advent calendar was created in 1851.

10. Crackers
Christmas crackers where invented by Thomas Smith, a London sweet maker, in 1846.

He was inspired by French bonbons, which came in twists of colored paper, but Smith also popped in a love motto to his wrapped sweets. Then to add an extra surprise, he included a strip of paper laced with chemicals that would crack when the twist was opened. Over time, the size of crackers increased and he replaced the sweets with a small gift.

The fist Christmas crackers went on sale in London in 1847, and the rest, as they say, is history....

11. Father Christmas – Or Santa

The patron saint of sailors and children, St Nicholas lived in Myrna (now modern day Turkey) in the 4th-Century.

His generosity was legendary, and he was made a saint when he died and given his own feast day, originally on December 6th.

Later, this led to him becoming associated with the Christian celebrations around the birth of Jesus.

In Holland, his name evolved to Sinterklaas and then to Santa Clause when Dutch settlers in America brought with them the tradition of leaving out clogs to be filled with presents.
In 19th-Century England, the poem A Visit from St Nicholas, eventually published as T'Was the Night Before Christmas described the jolly, red-face, white bearded Father Christmas that we now know so well.

12. Christmas Baubles
By the 1880s the German town of Lauscha, was renowned for its glass industry –producing hand-cast lead and hand-blown glass balls which were sold at the Christmas markets.

Germany remained the main producer of glass baubles up until mass production was developed in the USA, following the two world wars.

13. Mince Pies
Mince pies were originally filled with meat as well as dried fruit and spices. It's thought they were brought to Britain in the 13th-Century by returning Crusaders who'd enjoyed Middle Eastern dishes combining meat, fruit and spices.

Often called Christmas pies, they were first oval shaped to represent Jesus' manger.

Later the Victorians left out the meat but retained the three spices, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg to represent the three wise men.

Tradition says we should eat one mince pie on each of the twelve days of Christmas to ensure 12 months of good luck. Refuse a mince pie and bad luck could follow. Ah, so now we have an excuse to indulge.

14. Nativity Scenes
The nativity scenes we know now started back in Rome in the 10th Century. From around the 12th Century, reenactments became more popular and they started to spread across Europe. Static nativity scenes with wooden figures are most common, but in some countries, including Sicily in Italy, you can see living nativity scenes.

15. The Holly And The Ivy

The Ivy Holly and ivy are a traditional combination over Christmas. Holly's popularity has its origins in history, when holly was accepted as protection against witches and pagans; it's also said that the the thorns and berries of holly represent the Crown of Thorns worn by Jesus on the cross, and the blood he shed there. Ivy, meanwhile has heart-shaped leaves and are said to be a symbol of Jesus' birth.

16. Church Attendance
Christmas Day is an important Christian holiday and feast day, so attending church on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day itself is an important Christmas tradition. It is also – with Easter – the time when most people who don't attend church regularly do go.

5 Ways Walking Can Boost Your Brain Health

by Martha W. Murphy, AARP

In early 2020, COVID-19 brought an end to my workouts at the gym. I was self-employed and recently widowed, and my new normal felt like solitary confinement. Then, one morning, I made a break for it and went for a walk. I did it again the next day, then the next. Soon my new daily habit began to make me feel happier and my mind sharper, both of which I could only credit to my daily treks.

Curious about what was occurring, I did some research. It turns out there's a mountain of scientific evidence that indicates walking — especially walking outdoors — is powerful medicine for your brain. Here's what the data shows.

1. Walking may help you grow new brain cells.
Moderately paced walks stimulate the release of a protein called brain-derived neurotrophic factor, or BDNF, that is key to the survival of existing brain neurons and the generation of new ones. "Perhaps the most exciting finding is that aerobic forms of exercise [including walking] likely help facilitate the growth of new neurons," says Patrick Smith, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

2. Walking may boost your creativity.
Walking increases the flow of oxygen and nutrients to the brain, which can open the gates to enhanced creativity. The brain uses "about three times as much oxygen for healthy neuron function as muscles do" and is extremely sensitive to decreases in oxygen levels, according to Advanced Neurotherapy, a neurofeedback wellness clinic in Needham, Massachusetts. Creativity is a cognitive skill that is part of problem-solving. Studies show that the simple act of getting up from your desk and taking a short walk can help trigger ideas. A Stanford University study found "creative output increased 60 percent when participants were walking," even on a treadmill facing a blank wall.

3. Walking may enhance your mood.
When you walk, increased blood flow to the brain initiates a "cascade of changes," says Marie Pasinski, M.D., assistant professor of neurology at Harvard Medical School. "A cocktail of feel-good neurotransmitters — serotonin, dopamine, endorphins — is released." Forty-two percent of American adults suffer a vitamin D deficiency. Our bodies manufacture vitamin D when exposed to sunlight, furthering the production of serotonin, a hormone benefiting memory and mood. Even on a cloudy day, "exposure to light elevates the mood," says John Ratey, M.D., associate clinical professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School.

4. Walking may reduce the risk of cognitive decline.
Participants who walked more than 4,000 steps per day had healthier brain tissue in the area responsible for memory, learning and cognitive function than those who did not, one study found. That brain region, called the hippocampus, typically begins to shrink in late adulthood, leading not only to impaired memory but also an increased risk of dementia. The research revealed that aerobic exercise increases the size of the hippocampus.

5. Walking may decrease brain-damaging stress.
Repeated exposure to stressful situations impairs memory, attention and cognitive flexibility. Walking in nature has been shown to be particularly effective at reducing stress levels. The impact of being outdoors may have to do with "optic flow" — the perception that objects are moving past us as we walk, which quiets the circuits responsible for stress, says Andrew Huberman, a neuroscientist in the Department of Neurobiology at Stanford Medicine.

"Self-generated optic flow — by walking, running or cycling — shifts the brain into a state of relaxation that's not seen when you're stationary," he says. Scientists have seen walking reduce levels of cortisol, which surges during fight-or-flight situations. Elevated cortisol levels may damage cognition and contribute to Alzheimer's disease, according to a 2019 review of studies in Frontiers in Aging Neuroscience. Just a 20-minute walk has been shown to reduce stress.

Things to Do in the Garden in December By Fan Winston

1. Prune and trim.

December can be a good time for light pruning to shape and maintain the structure of your plants. Remove any dead or diseased branches, but avoid heavy pruning, as it may stimulate new growth that could be vulnerable to frost.

2. Protect fragile plants.

If you have tender plants that are susceptible to cold, consider covering them with frost cloth or burlap during colder nights. Move potted plants to more sheltered areas or indoors during particularly cold spells.

3. Mulch with straw

Gardeners add mulch in the spring to prevent weeds and lock in moisture, but mulch is also important in the winter. A layer of straw as mulch protects the soil from temperature fluctuations.

4. Monitor the weather.

Adjust the watering schedule: Reduce the frequency of watering, as plants need less water in cooler weather. You may not need to water as often as you do during the warmer months. If the Bay Area experiences periods of consistent rain and temperatures are consistently cool, you might consider turning off your sprinkler system temporarily.

5. Prepare your tools.

Take inventory of all your gardening tools. Replace or fix broken items, clean tools, and sharpen blades to keep them in good condition. When warmer weather rolls around, you'll be ready to roll

6. Garden Cleanup

Remove fallen leaves and debris to prevent the buildup of potential disease sources.

7. Soil Care

Test your soil and amend it if necessary. Adding organic matter can improve soil structure and fertility. Consider cover cropping to protect and enrich the soil during the winter months.

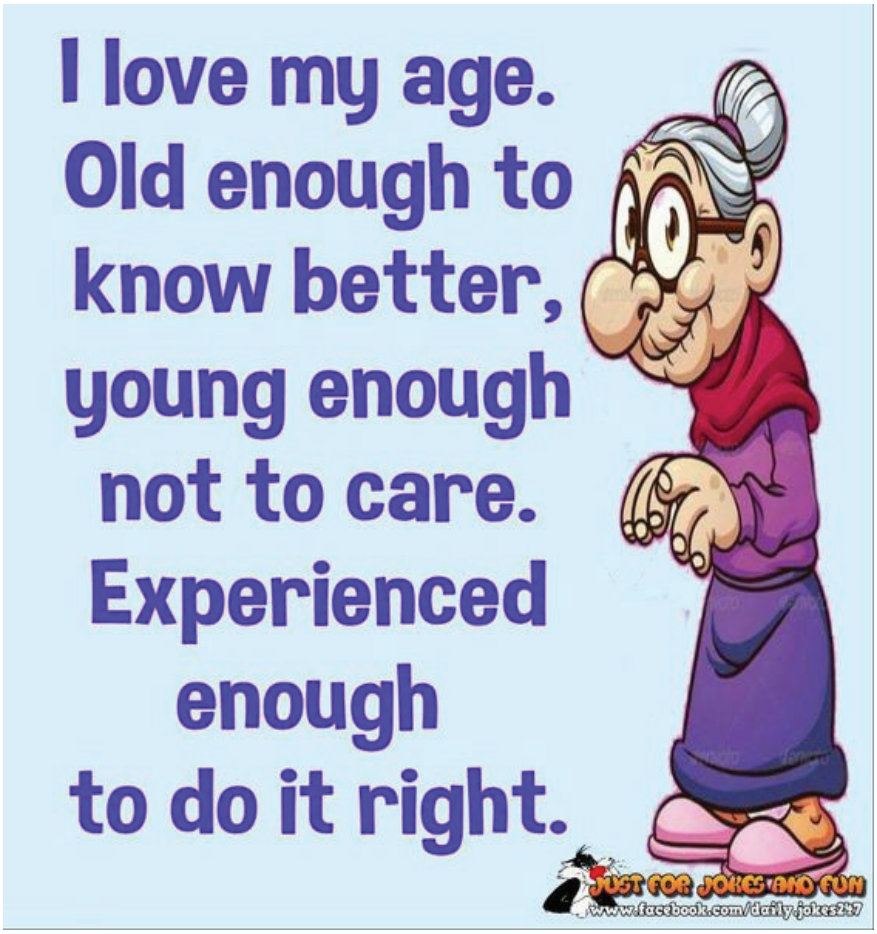

8. Consider Winter Vegetables

If you enjoy gardening year-round, consider planting winter vegetables that thrive in the cooler temperatures of the Bay Area.

COMMUNITY BULLETIN

Anyone with old, torn, or faded American flag, may drop them off at 239 Santa Susana for proper disposal.

ELDER CARE

If you are a senior looking for assistance with grocery shopping, caregiving, need a ride to appointments, errands, picking up medications, run to the post office, light housekeeping or other tasks, please contact Michael at 510-604-5646. I live in Mission Bay.

MAIL SAFETY

Someone in the community reported that he and his neighbors' mail boxes were all standing open one morning. This is the second time this has occured and it is suspected that someone is going down the street during the night looking for mail to steal. As a precaution, please do not put out any outgoing mail until morning

SCAM ALERT

San Mateo County law enforcement officials warned the public of a scam in which men posing as construction workers damage homes and then demand payment for repairs. The scam targeted homeowners in San Francisco and across the Bay Area, according to the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office.

The men would initially offer free roof inspections, or offer to make inexpensive repairs before intentionally damaging victims' homes and demanding payment for subsequent repair work.

Before paying or agreeing to home repairs or inspections, residents can verify whether a contractor has a valid license by visiting https://www.cslb.ca.gov/.
